

Case Study: Bergen Energi

Business Challenge:

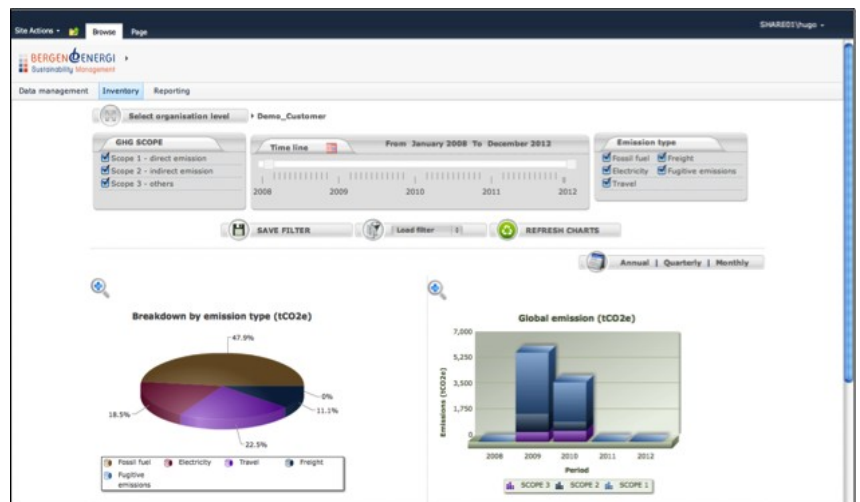

Bergen Energi is an independent provider of energy services within energy procurement, energy risk management and administration across Europe. They received considerable demand from their customers to expand their services to cover emissions measurement, management, and risk analysis to help them assess their position in Europe's emissions trading market. Bergen saw this as a great opportunity because they already manage a vast amount of energy consumption data so could add significant value to their existing data sets. Their challenge was to deliver a intuitive tool that would measure emissions very accurately to inform financial decision making.

Solution:

AMEE worked with partners to develop a custom application integrated with AMEEconnect. Our technology team and our development partner Zen'ito worked closely with Bergen management to define exact customer requirements and build a user-friendly application. The resulting application provides a intuitive tool enabling users to visualize and analyze their energy usage and emissions impact based on data already provided to Bergen. The application is integrated with AMEEconnect so all data is maintained to ensure accurate calculations.

Results:

- Value-added to existing Bergen Energi data opening a new market for products and services.
- User-friendly application providing data management, analysis and reporting functionality.
- Application developed start-to-finish in under three months.
- Ongoing maintenance of the calculation infrastructure by AMEE via the AMEE platform to ensure data accuracy.

Benefits: Why Bergen Energi Chose AMEE

Accuracy: Accuracy is critical for financial decisions. Bergen wanted to ensure their product was delivering accurate information to best serve their customers and mitigate any risk from liability.

Data Knowledge: Bergen did not just want a out-of-the box software solution because they anticipate data needs will continue to change. AMEE provides the necessary platform infrastructure to continuously meet new customer demand for both data and application requirements.

Time: AMEE and our partners were able to get the application developed and delivered in a tight timeline to fit with Bergen's strategic sales focus.
